Tonight the teams bat it out at Telus Field for Game 2 in a best-of-seven in the North American Baseball League's North Division championship.

Top five ranking helps 'tell the story of Calgary'

- Three of the top five livable cities are in Canada
- Calgary scored 100 in stability, healthcare and education

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

Calgary's ranking as the fifth most livable city in the world will help attract new Calgarians to the city, according to one local expert.

The 2011 Livability Ranking released yesterday by the Economist Intelligence Unit scored Calgary at a 96.6 out of a possible 100 points.

"I think rankings like this gain attention, not only locally but nationally and internationally, said Elsbeth Mehrer, director research, work force and strategy for Calgary Economic Development.

"And any time we've have the chance to tell the story about Calgary, that's an opportunity we have to capitalize on."

Mehrer said the rankings will be used on their website and in marketing tools to attract more people to Calgary.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi said the city's top spot speaks to the strides Calgary has made in recent years.

"I'd like to take all the credit for it, but in fact Calgary has been increasing in livability surveys around the world for many years now," he said. "The fact that we're ranked top five in the world by the Economist magazine I think really speaks to the kind of community we're building here."

One area where Calgary faired lower than other cities was in the weather category and Nenshi said he's looking to make some improvements in that area.

"I've been working very, very hard as you all know on my plan for a Calgary weather dome to fix the climate part of that," he joked. "City council won't go for it I'm afraid."

Livable cities index

- Calgary was named the fifth most livable city last year as well.
- After a longstanding run as No. 1, Vancouver was bumped down to the third most livable city this year.
- Melbourne, Australia made it to the top of the list, followed by Vienna, Austria.
- Toronto ranked fourth.
- Harare, Zimbabwe scored the lowest at 38.2.

Fake marijuana an ongoing issue: Police

Slow-to-evolve legislation keeps some products on shelves Police seized 770 packets of the substance from Calgary shops earlier this year

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Roughly seven months after police raided seven Calgary stores and seized hundreds of synthetic marijuana packets, similar products remain on city shelves.

Employees at nearly half of the dozen head shops contacted by Metro yesterday confirmed they still sell some form of the product, including two involved in the original January bust.

Acting drug unit Staff Sgt. Mike Bossley said his officers' hands are often tied while waiting for the Criminal Code of Canada to catch up with constantly evolving chemical compounds found in synthetic products.

"We certainly don't close a blind eye to this, this is an issue for us," he said. "We still can be very active in educating people ... making them understand why this is so dangerous."

Many of the products in question are sold as incense, but then inhaled by purchasers to achieve a high, Bossley said.

Local head shop owner Fred, who asked his last name be withheld, sells some of the products in question but believes police resources could be better spent elsewhere.

"I would hope they are out getting real criminals and things like cocaine and heroine off the street rather than harmless herbs that are doing way less harm to people," he said.

Bossley hopes Calgarians will think twice before experimenting with synthetic brands.

"The message is it's not good for you," he said.

Happy Shaman

- The most common synthetic marijuana product identified to Metro yesterday by head shop employees is called Happy Shaman.
- Police have said other brands of synthetic marijuana include Yucatan Fire, Tribe, Skunk, K2 and Spice.
- Health Canada made it clear in June last year that they were investigating some synthetic marijuana brands.
- U.S. health studies have suggested that some users have experienced side effects such as panic attacks, heart palpitations, hallucinations and vomiting.

Pedestrian killed in C-Train collision

Police are trying to determine how a collision between a pedestrian and a C-Train occurred yesterday morning, leaving one man dead.

Around 8:40 a.m., EMS and police were called to 36 St. and 39 Ave. N.E.

"Unfortunately, on their arrival they did determine that a male patient, approximately in his mid-30s, was deceased as a result of that collision," said EMS spokesperson Stuart Brideaux.

"What is unclear is the precise details that led to the collision."

Duty Insp. Michael Watterston said the investigation is in its early stages but it appears the 36-year-old victim did not intend to step in front of the train.

He said Calgary Transit is looking after the driver. "It's a traumatic situation for the driver and pedestrians that may have witnessed it."

FATALITY

Enmax worker electrocuted

An investigation is underway after an Enmax utilities worker was electrocuted yesterday.

The victim, believed to be in his 20s, was about five metres up a power pole near the 2800 block of 37th Street S.W. when the incident occurred, according to reports.

"Our thoughts and sympathies go out to the family and friends of the young man involved," Enmax interim President and CEO Charles Ruigrok said in a statement.

The victim was reportedly hooked into a safety harness when the shock occurred shortly after 1 p.m. He was lowered by co-workers and transported to Foothills Hospital, where he later died. METRO

Police reach out through Twitter

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Real-time crime updates and interaction with Calgary police were on the minds of social media users participating in a first-of-its-kind Twitter chat yesterday.

For 90 minutes, Calgary Police Service communications staff fielded questions from citizens using the hashtag #TellCPS in the hopes of improving their online presence.

"I think the common theme here was that the community is engaged," said spokesperson Michelle Dassinger after the conversation. She said social media adds another level of service to the community.

400 Police said they received more than 400 posts from tweeps (Twitter users) participating in the #TellCPS chat yesterday.

As an example, residents will tweet a traffic complaint to @calgarypolice and then a communications staff member will reply.

Dassinger said police now plan to analyze all responses from tweeps and determine what suggestions are within the realm of possibility. The police are also planning a similar chat using Facebook next week.

Studio could be good for Calgary: Redford

METRO FILE PHOTO

▶ Alison Redford at a news conference earlier this year. The Tory leadership candidate is open to the idea of putting provincial funding toward the Alberta Creative Hub.

Candidate favours plan to build $32 million film studio

One of the candidates for the Alberta Progressive Conservative leadership says she's open to the idea of the province helping fund a new state-of-the art movie studio in Calgary.

Alison Redford says she first wants to crunch numbers on what would be called the Alberta Creative Hub in Calgary, but adds the concept meshes with her proposal to expand the role of the arts in the province.

"If it makes economic sense and it's actually something that supports what I've been talking about, then I'm very open to looking at it," Redford said Tuesday before outlining her arts policy at a downtown Edmonton park.

The $32-million proposal for land at Calgary Olympic Park includes two massive sound stages along with offices, editing and production suites.

The project would keep homegrown artists in Alberta, which Redford said is critical to her vision. "What I don't want arts and culture to be anymore is a two-page policy," she said.

Redford is running along with caucus colleagues Doug Horner, Doug Griffiths and Ted Morton. Rick Orman and Gary Mar, cabinet ministers in previous Tory governments, are also vying for the top job.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Other views

- Doug Horner has said he would renew a commitment to the arts by doubling funding over the next three years for the Alberta Foundation for the Arts.
- Rick Orman has promised to increase lottery funding and integrate arts further into the province's economic diversification plan.
- Doug Griffiths has said he would look at further investment in top-level arts instructors in schools and transforming some buildings for art instruction.
- Gary Mar and Ted Morton have not put forward plans.

Hoping Hub will be lure for Hollywood

The idea would be to lure filmmakers now choosing other cities such as Vancouver to take advantage of the Rockies and southern Alberta badlands as sites for exterior movie work.

The City of Calgary has already committed to about one-third of the cost.

Culture Minister Lindsay Blackett would like another third from the province, with the balance sought from the federal government and private investors.

Gadhafi's mystery daughter

Evidence mounts the exiled leader faked the death of adopted girl Libyans believe Gadhafi wanted to garner sympathy and foster hatred toward the West

Since the rebel takeover of Tripoli, evidence has been mounting that Moammar Gadhafi may have lied about the death of his adopted baby daughter Hana in a 1986 U.S. airstrike.

The strike hit Gadhafi's home in retaliation for the Libyan-sponsored bombing of a Berlin nightclub earlier that year that killed two U.S. servicemen. At the time, Gadhafi showed American journalists a picture of a dead baby and said it was his adopted daughter Hana — the first public mention that she even existed. Diplomats almost immediately questioned the claim. But Gadhafi kept the story alive through the years.

But when Libyan rebels took over last week, they found a room in Gadhafi's home with Hana's birth certificate and pictures of a young woman with the name "Hana" written on the back, possible indications that she lived beyond infancy.

Rebel orders

The rebels are tightening their grip on Libya after a military blitz and have taken several steps to ensure control.

- Libyan rebels issued an ultimatum yesterday to Gadhafi's hometown of Sirte: Surrender this weekend or face an attack.
- There has been speculation that the dictator is seeking refuge in Sirte or one of the other remaining regime strongholds, among them the towns of Bani Walid or Sabha.
- Rebels also demanded that Algeria return Gadhafi's wife and three of his children, who fled there Monday.
- They also insisted they are slowly restoring order in war-torn Tripoli by deploying police and collecting garbage.

MILITARY. Israel sent two more warships to the Red Sea border with Egypt, the military said yesterday, as part of military reinforcement.

JAIL BREAK. Officials at Greece's largest prison say they have prevented an escape by discovering a 10-metre-long tunnel dug by an alleged murderer and two other inmates awaiting trial for burglary.

Gadhafi's other daughter gives birth

Hunted throughout her homeland and forced to flee into exile across a dangerous desert border, the daughter of ousted Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi paused somewhere in the Sahara to have a baby.

The dramatic birth of Gadhafi's granddaughter, after her mother and other relatives escaped Libyan territory into Algeria, lends a human dimension to the dictator's downfall and the ongoing mystery of his whereabouts. The birth in exile was disclosed by the Algerian Health Ministry yesterday.

Algeria's UN ambassador, Mourad Benmehidi Benmehidi, said the country allowed them to enter for "humanitarian considerations." Algerian news reports had said Aisha's pregnancy was one reason for the country's controversial decision to take the family in.

An Algerian newspaper reported that the exiles, who also included an unknown number of Gadhafi's grandchildren by his eight children, had waited 12 hours to receive authorization to cross the Algerian border from President Abdelaziz Bouteflika — while Aisha was in labour.

Violent protests erupt in South Africa

Supporters of South Africa's firebrand youth leader are the latest political salvo in a power struggle that could determine the future of South Africa's president and the man who helped catapult him to power — youth league chief Julius Malema.

Demonstrators burned flags of the ruling African National Congress and ran through the streets of downtown Johannesburg holding up flaming T-shirts bearing the image of President Jacob Zuma.

When the protesters began lobbing stones and bottles, police detonated stun grenades and turned water cannons on the crowd of thousands.

Police save China bus hostages

Chinese police subdued a knife-wielding assailant and freed a busload of passengers he'd taken captive yesterday outside a major eastern city in China, authorities and state media reported.

State media reports of the incident near Nanjing said at least three people aboard the bus were injured and taken to a hospital. Media accounts differed, with some saying there were multiple hijackers, at least one of whom had been shot and killed by a police SWAT team.

However, a Nanjing government spokesman who gave only his surname, Zhang, said all the hostages were successfully rescued and did not mention any injuries.

A news release from the city government did not say whether the hostage taker had been killed or merely arrested.

There was no immediate word on the hostage taker's identity, his motive or any specific demands he might have made.

Riot investigation given high-tech spin

Vancouver police encourage public to log on to new website and help identify suspected rioters

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA
METRO CANADA IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver police are asking the public to help them bring hundreds of suspects from the June 15 Stanley Cup riot to justice through a new interactive website (riot2011.vpd.ca).

Insp. Les Yeo of the riot investigation team said they have posted 40 photos of suspected rioters on the website in the hopes the public can identify them.

Yeo said police will be adding 100 more photos in the coming weeks so investigators won't be overwhelmed and will have enough time for a thorough investigation.

"You get one kick at the can, and that's why we need to take our time to ensure these suspects, these accused, don't evade justice."
JIM CHU, VANCOUVER POLICE CHIEF

Chief Jim Chu also again defended the Vancouver Police Department over the lack of charges stemming from the incident. He said police are taking their time collecting evidence to make sure that people are held accountable to the full extent of their involvement during the riots.

"We don't get two chances at this," Chu said. "We can't charge (suspects with) rioting and then say, 'Hey, your honour, we found some more information three months later. Can we charge (them) with rioting again?'"

Chu added 42 people have already turned themselves in, and police are investigating 1,100 names of people who may have been involved in the riots. Still, no charges have been laid.

An independent report into the riot is expected to be released tomorrow by former VANOC head John Furlong and former Nova Scotia deputy justice minister Doug Keefe.

Judge to probe British tabloids

News International shaken by allegations of illegal behaviour ◐ Fingers pointed at even more newspapers

Rupert Murdoch's scandal-hit News International confirmed yesterday that it was reviewing journalistic standards across the company, a U.K. media group that includes The Times of London newspaper.

More than a dozen former journalists and executives from the now-defunct News of the World have been arrested over claims they systematically intercepted mobile phone messages and illegally paid police for tips.

It's believed the review will examine News International publications, including the 226-year-old Times, its sister-publication the Sunday Times, and The Sun, Britain's biggest-selling daily.

The publishers of the Daily Mirror and the Daily Mail, which both compete with Murdoch's papers, have announced their own separate reviews.

Meanwhile, Britain's Electoral Commission says it won't investigate payments made to Andy Coulson, the former News of the World editor who was hired to work as David Cameron's top media aide in 2007, three years before he became prime minister.

The scoop

An independent inquiry led by Judge Brian Leveson is preparing to put Britain's press under the microscope. Here's what is known about the inquiry so far:

- A spokesman for the inquiry said he couldn't confirm a report that Rupert and James Murdoch will be called to testify.
- The judge is hoping to televise the inquiry's proceedings in the interests of transparency.

CHINESE MINE DISASTER

19 miners pulled to safety

Their faces black with coal dust, 19 Chinese miners trapped for a week underground were brought to the surface yesterday, as rescuers searched for three missing colleagues.

Twenty-six miners had been trapped near the surface when water poured into a shaft on Aug. 23 from an adjacent, flooded mine. Three had been pulled out alive Saturday and one body was recovered.

The survivors stayed alive with water that dripped from the ceiling and nutrition packs sent through a 280-metre pipe drilled through the rock. The pipe also provided fresh air.

The mine was ordered shut in 2007, but reopened without permission earlier this month.

No more limits to new domain names

Web addresses could soon be more personalized and funky But search engines still look for .com

LILLO MONTALTO MONELLA
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Forget the old-fashioned web suffix ".com"— coming up with eccentric names to make websites catchier and easier to remember is the new trend on the Internet.

Icann, the global internet body that creates new web addresses, announced it will be taking applications next year for domain suffixes of almost any word and in any language.

From the current 22 domain endings available, websites ending with the adverb-sounding ".ly", the broadcast-hinting ".tv" or the captivating ".me" are now the hippest choice.

"Businesses always need quirky names that are easy to spell and to remember. If you come up with a more brandable name for your website, then you should go for it," marketing expert Andrew Girdwood from global digital media company bigmouthmedia told Metro.

As Girdwood explains, the downside is that websites ending in .ly — the country code domain for Libya — are designated as formal property of Libya's state-controlled telecommunications corporation, whose status is uncertain due to unrest in the region.

Montenegro has arguably the coolest-sounding ccTLD (country code top-level domain) with .me. Indeed, it has been a real gold mine for a country born only in 2006. According to Hosterstats.com, more than 500,000 .me domains have been registered, so far.

"A great quirky domain can work really well. But I don't envisage most established companies moving their primary web presence away from .com any time soon."
WILL CRITCHLOW, DISTILLED SEARCH MARKETING COMPANY

Yet despite the rise in trendy domain names, old habits die hard, as major online search engines still favour the old-fashioned.

"Dot-tv sounds perfect for a broadcasting company, but for search engine optimization, the dot-com is more popular," Mick Say, an expert at England's Online Marketing Academy, tells Metro.

"If a person is searching the Internet for a service or a global business, Google gives priority to the dot-com extension. It tells the search engine that 'I want to be known internationally as an international business.'"

Economy may be stalling

Economists widely expect that the Canadian economy stalled in the second quarter and may have even contracted slightly amid the global economic slowdown.

"It is going to be a hair within positive or negative, but the balance is slightly tilted to the negative," CIBC chief economist Avery Shenfeld said yesterday.

"Either way, it is essentially a flat profile for the economy."

Statistics Canada is expected to report the country's second-quarter gross domestic product results this morning, and a reading that economic growth was slower or even reversed course a little would indicate the economy is still struggling to throw off the effects of the recession.

Emails to be evidence in Facebook lawsuit

The New York man suing for part ownership of Facebook must give lawyers for the social networking company access to all his emails dating to 2003.

A federal judge yesterday denied Paul Ceglia's request to delay Facebook's access to his emails so he could voice his objections in court. Ceglia's lawyer had made the request in a filing late Monday, hoping to protect Ceglia's privacy.

Ceglia claims he made a deal with Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg in 2003 that entitles him to half ownership of the $50 billion company.

VANCOUVER'S NEW RANK REEKS

JUST SAYIN' ...

PAUL SULLIVAN

Vancouver: the world's most liveable city – NOT!

There is no joy in latté land today with the news that the Economist Intelligence Unit has demoted Vancouver, for years the most liveable city atop its list, to third, behind Melbourne and Vienna.

Even worse news? Toronto and Calgary are 4th and 5th, hot on our heels.

Oddly, the stupid Stanley Cup riot played no role in the demotion, although it may hit us where we rank. The reason for this year's demotion: a brief closure of the Malahat Highway due to a tanker spill in April led to a fractional reduction in infrastructure points, enough to allow Melbourne and Vienna to surge ahead.

Melbourne? Wasn't that the place that was hit with devastating floods earlier this year?

"What's really puzzling is that the Malahat Highway is on Vancouver Island. Which is elsewhere. You have to take a ferry to get to Vancouver Island. All told, that's about a four to four-and-a-half hour trip from Vancouver."

What's really puzzling is that the Malahat Highway is on Vancouver Island. Which is elsewhere. You have to take a ferry to get to Vancouver Island. All told, that's about a four to four-and-a-half hour trip from Vancouver. I would wager that many of the people who live in Metro Vancouver have no idea where the Malahat Highway is and have never been on it. It's relevant if you live in Victoria, which, like Vancouver, starts with a "V", but that's about it.

So you have to wonder about the Economist Intelligence Unit and its whole World's Most Liveable City project. The problem is there was no wondering when Vancouver was on top of the list. We just sat back, relaxed, and gloated.

Even when it rained 40 days and 40 nights. Even as it took a king's ransom to buy a rundown bungalow in Kerrisdale. Even as we rolled up the tinted windows on the SUV to avoid being tainted by the Downtown East Side. So now it's not going to do us much good to cast aspersions on the intelligence of the Intelligence Unit.

Meanwhile, Toronto and Calgary are flexing their gloating muscles. They can hardly wait for next year's list, when the EIU takes the riot into account. I'm not sure I'll have the strength to carry on if Calgary turns out to be more liveable than Vancouver.

There's one thing I do know. I'd rather live in Toronto, or even (gasp) Calgary than in one of the cities at the bottom of the list, although they say #140: last place Harare, Zimbabwe, is nice this time of year.

Letters

Federal Environment Minister Peter Kent recently announced new regulations for limiting emissions for any new coal-fired power plants that will be built in Canada starting July 2015.

While framed as legislation that Kent claims will act as "the equivalent of taking eight million cars off Canadian roads" this legislation falls drastically short of an effective level of environmental protection for two central reasons: Firstly, the legislation essentially gives existing plants licence to continue to pollute; secondly, it allows Maxim Power to build a new 500-megawatt coal plant in Alberta before the July deadline, thereby escaping the new regulations.

If we are serious about protecting the future of our precious natural resources, as well as that of our children as well as our planet, we need to stop investing in coal power and setting mediocre standards that do more to appease corporate citizenship than Canadian citizens, and we need to do this NOW, before it is truly too late.

Snakes on a plane attempt an epic fail

U.S. officials say a man tried to board a flight from Miami to Brazil with bags of exotic snakes and tortoises stuffed in his pants.

Transportation Security Administration spokesman Jonathon Allen says the man was stopped after passing through a body scanner at Miami International Airport last week.

Security officials spotted the nylon bags filled with seven snakes and three tortoises hidden in the man's pants.

The South Florida Sun Sentinel newspaper reports the animals were taken by the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife.

The unidentified passenger was arrested.

It's not the only time someone has tried to smuggle snakes on a TAM Airlines flight, the paper reported.

In 1996, a woman attempted to sneak 75 live snakes inside her bra in Sweden, according to the Sentinel. And, in 2007, a man tried to smuggle a tiny monkey under his shirt on a flight from Fort Lauderdale, the paper said.

METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Metro recently caught up with Shark Night 3D director David Ellis and one of the flick's stars, American Idol runner-up Katharine McPhee, to see what secrets about the film they're willing to spill.

What can you tell us, without giving too much away, about Shark Night 3D?
David Ellis: There's sharks in it (laughs). It's really weird. And a lot of the movie takes place at night.
Katharine McPhee: I'm in it.
DE: Kat's in it.
KM: My character's name is Beth. That's all I know.

David, you're no stranger to genre movies. What's the appeal of them as a filmmaker?
DE: For me, I think it's just fun to be able to entertain people — for them to be able to go an escape from everything crazy that's going on in the world for an hour and a half and go have fun, to kind of scare them and make them laugh and make them cry, and just kind of play with their emotions.
KM: You like making people cry.

How was the Shark Night experience for you, Kat?
KM: Oh, it was so much fun. I love going to set. I love getting up early. I mean, on a regular basis, you will never find me up early, but I love when my alarm goes off and I get to put on my pyjamas and get to set and get my coffee and my food and get in hair and makeup.

I love everything about it, so for me just the whole experience is great. We shot in Shreveport, La., and even though it's not a particularly exotic place, it was gorgeous. And I just love being in new places and feeling like you're starting something new.
DE: I love the free food part. Like, every day when you go to the set and they have all this free food. But what made it so fun for me was that we had an amazing crew and we had a cast that was into it 110 per cent.

Were you afraid of sharks before you made the movie?
KM: I'm one of those people who, especially as a kid, would spend hours in the ocean swimming. I love swimming. But always in the back of my head there was that fear of a shark coming and getting you. I could say that, yeah, this has definitely made it a little bit more of a threat.
DE: For me, I grew up in the ocean as well — my whole life in Malibu — and I'm aware of them, you respect them. But you have a better chance of getting hit by a coconut than getting killed by a shark. But it's a primal fear for people.
KM: It's just not a way you want to go. There's a couple other ways I could think of wanting to go other than sharks.

The Debt
Genre: Thriller/Drama
Director: John Madden
Stars: Helen Mirren, Sam Worthington and Tom Wilkinson

The Debt is an espionage story with a twist. In 1996 retired Mossad agents Rachel, David and Stefan (Helen Mirren, Ciarán Hinds and Tom Wilkinson) are heroes, acclaimed for their brave capture and execution of a notorious war criminal in 1966.

In flashback we meet the same characters played by Jessica Chastain, Marton Csokas, and Sam Worthington, learn the personal dynamics of the mission and the key to a long held secret.

The flashback sequence makes up the bulk of the film so it's fair to say this isn't Helen Mirren's film, but her character Rachel's.

Unusual for a spy movie, the story is told through the eyes of a woman but that adds depth to what is essentially a pulpy spy story.

With all the speculation going around about her family life, Angelina Jolie wants to clear a few things up.

"I'm not pregnant. I'm not adopting at the moment," Jolie tells Vanity Fair. She added that there is no "secret wedding" planned for her and Brad Pitt.

Jolie is more concerned with her directorial debut,

In the Land of Blood and Honey, and says that Pitt tried his best to be helpful during the making of the project.

"He'd come in and say what he liked or what he didn't understand," she says.

"Like any woman, I would listen to most of it and fight a few things. He's been so supportive.

But it's hard to separate the person that loves you from the critic, so I don't think he's a fair judge."

Lindsay's bro receives threatening calls

Lindsay Lohan's 15-year-old brother, Cody Lohan, hasn't been having the best summer.

The teen has reportedly been receiving threatening phone calls that were unsettling enough for him to call 911, according to reports from TMZ.

Cody reported to police that the caller was threatening to "harm him," law enforcement sources say.

There was some questions raised about who was watching the teenage brother of star Linsday.

Reports indicated his mother, Dina Lohan, was still in Los Angeles at the time after attending the recent, high-profile wedding of socialite Kim Kardashian.

Sources have since told the celebrity-driven website that Cody is "under proper care now."

The driver, Heather Borman, says a clearly inebriated Fox was trying to the party bus she was driving, though he wasn't a part of the group who had rented it.

"He just kept staring at me with his mouth wide open and not saying anything. I told him, 'You have to leave buddy. You are trespassing on my bus,'" Borman says.

She added that Fox then "leaned in and started punching my crotch and breast."

Borman struck back, punching Fox in the face and splitting his lip, which deterred the actor.

Borman says she was acting in self-defence.

Guided hikes reveal Niagara's geology

A series of guided fall hikes along Ontario's long-distance Bruce Trail will explore the geology of the Niagara Escarpment. Seven locations on the trail are highlighted, including Waterdown, the Credit River valley, the Nottawasaga Bluffs and the Bruce Peninsula on Georgian Bay. Dubbed "Geology 101 on Foot," the walks are a fundraising project to support the Bruce Trail Conservancy. The trail stretches almost 900 kilometres from Queenston, near Niagara Falls, to Tobermory.

Prepare for a scare at Halifax haunts

Ghost stories and sightings abound at Halifax's most popular tourist sites

ALL PHOTOS ANDREW VAUGHAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Visitors claim to have seen ghosts in the garrison cells at Halifax Citadel National Historic Site.

With its long history of disasters and shipwrecks, there is an air of tragedy that hangs over Halifax, not unlike the dense fog that often rolls in from its harbour.

Though the port city has long established itself as a down-home, good-time burg — a place to unwind to a toe-tapping Celtic tune and a dram of whisky — those thirsty for spirits of the paranormal kind won't be disappointed.

One of Halifax's most infamous spooky sites is the Five Fishermen Restaurant and Grill, perched on the bustling corner of Carmichael and Argyle Streets. Having once served as a mortuary, it's perhaps not surprising that the 194-year-old structure is equally known for its hauntings as well as its halibut.

The four-storey, brick-and-wood building opened in 1816 as a schoolhouse and was eventually taken over by a local family and turned into a funeral home.

It became the last stop of sorts for victims of two significant disasters of the 20th century — the sinking of the Titanic off Newfoundland in April 1912 and the Halifax Explosion of 1917. The explosion occurred when a supply vessel and a munitions ship collided in the harbour, killing 2,000 people and leaving some 9,000 injured.

Shane Robilliard, the Five Fishermen's general manager, says tales of cutlery moving on its own, disembodied voices and shadowy figures have actually been good for business.

Robilliard recalls a recent instance when diners tried to send a text message from their table. But instead of the intended message, Robilliard says only one word flashed on the recipient's mobile phone: death.

"People dine at the Five Fishermen to experience something or to be a part of the history of this building," he says.

More eerie experiences await just up Carmichael Street at one of the city's most recognizable sites, the Halifax Citadel National Historic Site.

The British fort, completed in 1856, offers 90-minute tours exploring every dark nook and cranny where the ghosts of former soldiers are said to lurk.

A steep walk down some 33 stone steps on the southwest demi-bastion leads to a pair of dark, dank rooms with a half-dozen metal cots and grimy, barred windows — a former prison for soldiers.

Hal Thompson, the site's visitor experience officer, remembers one visitor to the site who said she spied a uniformed man enter a room and seemingly vanish. The woman was unaware of the site's ghostly reputation and wanted to know how the man — whom she presumed to be a staff member — managed to leave undetected from a room with only one exit.

At first, Thompson says he joked that perhaps the woman had seen a ghost. But then he began to wonder.

"It doesn't make any sense. There should not have been anyone there wearing that uniform and disappearing into thin air like that," he recalls. "So that's a fairly convincing story." THE CANADIAN PRESS

OTHER SITES

Ghosts galore

Other sites that are rumoured to be haunted can be found in and around Halifax's historic harbour.

Near the waterfront is the Alexander Keith's brewery, which is said to be inhabited by the ghost of the brewmaster himself. McNabs Island, accessible only by boat (ghost ship not required), is reputed to be haunted by the ghost of a former resident who was found drowned.

At least two companies in Halifax offer ghost walk tours for visitors eager to learn about the creepier side of the city.

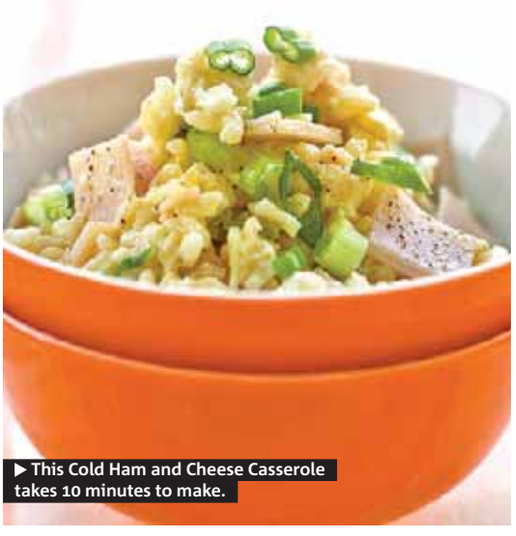
Let your creative side shine with their lunches

Believe it or not, school lunches can consist of a lot more than a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and a juice box Leftovers and deconstructing meals are great places to start

ALL PHOTOS: MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



▶ This Cold Ham and Cheese Casserole takes 10 minutes to make.

Getting creative with kids' lunches can be a bit of a minefield. It can be hard enough to get them to embrace new foods at home, never mind when they are surrounded by friends at school.

But that doesn't mean you can't break free of the same old sandwich routine. It's just a matter of using foods already in your children's comfort zone.

Leftovers are a great place to start (assuming they were well received the first time around). Plenty of thick stews and chilies can be repurposed as chilled fillings for wraps, especially when topped with shredded cheese. Or consider deconstructing something, such as pasta salad. Put it back together in a way that's fun for kids, as we did for the tortellini veggie skewers. Also, breakfast is great for the beginning of the day and makes a fun supper, so why not consider it for lunch too?

Cold Ham and Cheese Casserole

This "casserole" is a great way to use up leftovers. Feel free to play with the ingredients. Chicken, steak and even chopped leftover hamburgers are fine substitutes for the ham.

Preparation:

1. In a small bowl, stir together mustard, mayonnaise and vinegar. Add rice, ham and cheddar, then mix well.

ALL RECIPES THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients:

- 5 ml (1 tsp) mustard
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) low-fat mayonnaise
- 5 ml (1 tsp) apple cider vinegar
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) cooked rice (white or brown)
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) cubed cooked ham
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) shredded cheddar
- 1 scallion, thinly sliced, to garnish

Tortellini Veggie Skewers

Preparation:

1. Cut yellow pepper into 6 strips. Using each pepper strip as a skewer, push 2 tortellini onto each strip.
2. Use a paring knife to poke a hole into the top of each cherry tomato and cap end of each pepper strip with a tomato and an olive. Cut slices of turkey and provolone into 6 long strips, then wrap one of each around skewers. Serve skewers with a side of your child's favourite salad dressing.

Ingredients:

- 1/2 yellow bell pepper
- 12 cooked tortellini
- 6 whole black olives
- 6 cherry tomatoes
- 1 slice deli turkey
- 1 slice provolone cheese

▶ Turn breakfast into lunch with this pancake-bacon combo.

Breakfast lunch

This easy pancake and bacon breakfast-lunch let's kids assemble their own meal. You just need to give them the basics — tiny pancakes, cooked bacon slices, blueberries and maple syrup for dunking.

Preparation:

1. Pancakes: In medium bowl, whisk flour, cornmeal, baking soda, sugar and salt. Add yogurt and milk, whisk until just smooth.
2. In skillet over medium-high heat, melt butter. Drop spoonfuls of batter into pan, leaving space between each to allow for spreading. Cook for 1 to 2 minutes, flip and cook for an additional 1 to 2 minutes, or until golden and cooked through. Let cool thoroughly before packing.
3. Pack the pancakes with the bacon, fruit and maple syrup on the side in their lunch bags.

Ingredients:

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) all-purpose flour
- 15 ml (1 tsp) cornmeal
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) baking soda
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) sugar
- Pinch salt
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) plain yogurt
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) milk
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter
- 2 slices cooked bacon
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) blueberries (or favourite fruit)
- Maple syrup, for dipping

STUDENT VOICE

ERIN HAYES
TALENTEGG.CA

As a second-year business student tired of spending my summers working in retail, I jumped at the opportunity to enrol in the co-operative education option (co-op) offered at my school.

I joined co-op under the impression that I would easily be able to secure meaningful summer employment, but I quickly discovered this was not the case.

I applied to countless jobs and had no difficulty getting interviews; my problem lay in receiving an actual job offer.

I left each interview feeling as if it had gone well, only to be informed a few days later that I had not been chosen as the successful candidate for the job. And I was not alone. Several of my fellow classmates were experiencing the exact same dilemma.

As a well-qualified applicant, this frustrating process led me to wonder which students were being selected for these jobs. It turned out that students with more experience and education, such as third and fourth years and graduates with whom I could not compete, were getting those offers.

Employers shouldn't overlook the applications of promising young students simply because they lack experience.

Students who actively achieve and aim to improve themselves should be given fair consideration from employers; these students should not be automatically placed on the back burner to more senior and experienced applicants.

To compete with more experienced applicants, younger students should take advantage of the many opportunities offered by universities, such as volunteering, conferences and competitions.

By making an effort to get involved, students can develop relevant skills to their field of study, as well as establish relationships and build their professional network. When participating in extra-curricular activities, you never know what opportunities will present themselves or who you might meet.

Where Erin is now

I had nearly resorted to handing out resumés at the local mall when an opportunity arose.

I was contacted by a professional I had met during a networking event hosted by a student society I belonged to. My professor had spoken with this individual and requested that they consider me for a job before formally posting the position, and following the interview I was fortunate enough to receive a job offer.

My story has proven that although what you know is undoubtedly the most important, who you know can't hurt.

What I learned

Key take-aways from Erin's experience:

- Becoming involved within your school through student groups, conferences and competitions is a great way to develop career-related skills and build your resumé.
- Get to know your professors and attend as many on-campus networking events as you can. Although relevant skills and a strong GPA are important, my story highlights that who you know is often equally as important.

Breaking the school cycle

Having a parent with a degree not the predictor of success it once was

A recent Statistics Canada study has found that people whose parents didn't graduate from university are nearly twice as likely to get a degree today than they were more than two decades ago.

The study revealed that in 2009, 23 per cent of people whose parents didn't get a university education held a degree, up from 12 per cent in 1986.

The 2009 General Social Survey attributes the shrinking disparity in university completion by family background to women.

In 1986, only 10 per cent of women whose parents were not university graduates held a degree. By 2009, that proportion nearly tripled to 28 per cent.

But Martin Turcotte, a senior analyst at Statistics Canada who authored the study, said there was a significant increase in the number of women with highly educated parents who got degrees, too.

ISTOCK

▶ You too can be the first one in your family to pack your post-secondary bags.

"Really the fact that more women from all types of families get degrees contributed a lot to the decreasing gap," said Turcotte.

Despite the increase there's still a sizable difference between the two groups, with a person whose parents hold a degree much more likely to complete university.

"The gap is still important," said Turcotte. "People with parents who have a university education are twice as likely to get the degree themselves, compared to other people."

The study also found that parents' educational achievements have less of an impact on the children of immigrants. Those children are even more likely than the kids of Canadian-born parents to complete university.

"The fact that more women from all types of families get degrees contributed a lot to the decreasing gap."
MARTIN TURCOTTE, SENIOR ANALYST AT STATISTICS CANADA

"There's some literature that shows that immigrants have higher expectations for their children's education than Canadian-born parents," said Turcotte.

School supplies?

Are you a divorced parent dealing with back to school? Help is here

Balancing the school budget can get complicated when you and your child's other parent are not together. Here are some tips to the scholastic year fiscally fair, even if you are not divorced.

Balance needs versus wants Make a list of "needs" and agree that kids will get a few "wants" met. Allocate a set dollar amount they are free to spend.

Set the budget before you go shopping Before you venture into a store set a non-negotiable budget. This is not just for their purposes but also to keep parents from caving in.

Make a detailed list before you hit the stores We know not to go grocery shopping when hungry and the same rule applies for back-to-school shopping. There are many purchase temptations to abstain from, even for the strong-willed.

Set the budget for extracurricular activities before you sign up Set a budget per child that covers lessons, equipment and other hidden costs, then engage in a conversation with the kids and the other parent to ensure you are not doubling up on activities or creating a conflicting schedule.

Empower your kids financially Allot an allowance for extra purchases and one for necessities to engage kids in responsible budgeting and shopping at an early age.

Should the axe fall and your job get severed, career counsellors warn, you'll have to get by with a little help from your friends.

Except, big problem: If you're like the average laid off employee, your friends will all be left behind in that same burning building.

That's why career counsellors recommend you foster industry friendships far beyond the block where you work, while you're still working.

"It's much easier to have that network ready in place when you need it than to try to scramble and connect the people at the last minute," About.com jobseekers' guru Alison Doyle cautions. "Then all of a sudden you're begging people."

And that, she explains, is what you'd least like to be doing: scrounging strangers for jobs.

Instead, agrees Connecting With Success author Kathleen Barton, your network should be in constant development, a regular exchange of favours and tips.

"It's about building mutually beneficial relationships, where you're not always asking for help when you're contacting them," she says. "Maybe you're giving updates, or finding out how they're doing, or how you can support them."

"It's much easier to have that network ready in place when you need it than to try to scramble and connect the people at the last minute."
ALISON DOYLE, ABOUT.COM

Or maybe you're just calling to say howdy — one friendly lunch hour phone call at a time.

"Don't try to build a network overnight," Doyle advises. "Take it one step at a time. Spend a little bit of everyday working on it, looking for new contacts."

"Don't be intimidated," she adds. "You're not the only person who is new at this."

Find The Little Reasons

Great networking, Barton offers, is about seizing those little excuses to reach out to a mere acquaintance.

"There are so many creative ways you can do that," she says. Holidays help —and not just the passé ones like Christmas and birthdays. Think Halloween, she suggests.

"Rather than Christmas, when everybody gets cards, I send Thanksgiving cards to let them know I'm thinking about them," she adds.

BOOK REVIEW

CRAIG LUND
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

When the topic of customer service comes up in discussion, most conversations likely centre around experiences with hospitality services such as a hotel stay or a restaurant or perhaps a retail situation.

Hospitals however do not generally come up at all. In his book Prescription for Excellence, Joseph A. Michelli, Ph.D. describes the incredible transformation that took place at the UCLA Health System under the helm of CEO Dr. David Feinberg and points to the key aspect of this change being tied to service.

At the time when Feinberg became CEO he had "inherited an organization that had rich existing strengths in medical training, cutting edge research, and the delivery of extraordinary clinical outcomes."

However, UCLA's overall patient satisfaction scores were in the 30 to 40 percentile.

Initially tasked with turning around this perception, Feinberg was faced with some strong cynics in the industry, and even within the UCLA hospital system.

Michelli's book demonstrates the effects of inspirational leadership, despite the immensely challenging conditions in the health care system, described as "a complicated and often maligned sector of [the] economy."

At the end of the day, the simplest methods achieved the results… it isn't brain surgery.

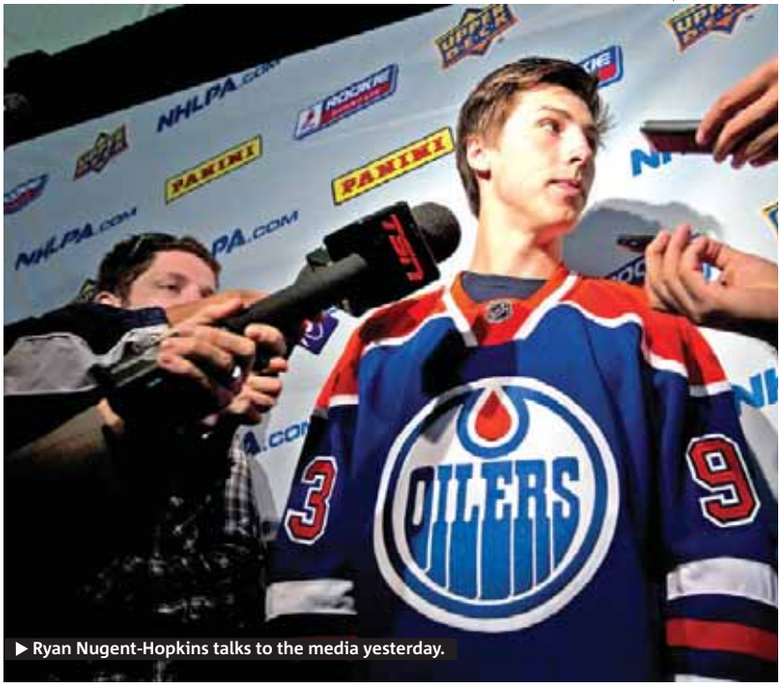
Oilers pick Nugent-Hopkins, other top prospects seeking first NHL jobs

BERNARD WEIL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE



▶ Ryan Nugent-Hopkins talks to the media yesterday.

Recent history suggests two of them will still be wearing NHL sweaters in October.

As Ryan Nugent-Hopkins, Gabriel Landeskog and Jonathan Huberdeau pulled on the uniform of their new NHL teams yesterday morning, each expressed a strong desire to continue wearing it all season. With training camps approaching, the top three picks from June's draft feel tantalizingly close to finally realizing their NHL dream.

"I just want to wear this sweater and I just want to get on the ice and play," said Nugent-Hopkins, sporting a blue and orange No. 93 Edmonton Oilers home jersey.

The 18-year-old centre has spent a considerable amount of time in the gym since being selected with the No. 1 pick at the Xcel Energy Center in Minnesota.

Nugent-Hopkins estimates that he's added 12 pounds to his six-foot frame over the summer and now weighs in at about 177 pounds. It was done with an eye on cracking the Oilers roster out of training camp.

"Hopefully that will help me," said Nugent-Hopkins. "I'm not too focused on my weight right now, I'm just going to focus on how well I play and just playing as good as I can. Obviously, the weight was a little bit of an issue so I tried to address it as much as I could."

The only No. 1 pick who didn't jump straight to the NHL since the lockout was defenceman Erik Johnson, who spent a season at the University of Minnesota rather than join the St. Louis Blues in 2006. Overall, 11 of the 18 players taken in the top three spots between 2005 and 2010 went directly to the NHL.

It was no coincidence that Nugent-Hopkins, Landeskog and Huberdeau were grouped together yesterday at the NHLPA's rookie showcase, an event where 26 prospects took the ice and posed for photos that will be used on their first NHL trading cards.

They've been fielding questions about whether they were ready to play in the NHL right away since before the draft. The focus on them will only intensify in the coming weeks during rookie tournaments and their first training camps.

"It's something that comes along with (being a top pick)," said Landeskog, who sported a No. 92 Colorado Avalanche jersey. "I see pressure as a positive thing. I want high expectations (placed on) myself. That's why I play this game — I want to get better every day."

He'll travel to Denver today and plans to pick the brain of teammate Matt Duchene, who was selected third in the 2009 draft and joined the Avalanche the following season.

Many believe Landeskog is in the best position among this year's draft class to earn a job because he's physically mature and trying to crack the roster of a rebuilding team.

Blue Jays lose to O's in extra innings

6	5
ORIOLES	BLUE JAYS

Ryan Adams capped a two-run, 10th-inning rally with an RBI single and the Baltimore Orioles beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 last night.

Matt Wieters led off the Baltimore 10th by drawing a walk off Brian Tallet (0-2), who was trying for his first career save. Mark Reynolds walked and, after Robert Andino bunted a foul third strike, pinch hitter Jake Fox hit a game-tying single to right with Reynolds taking third.

Adams followed with a deep fly ball off the warning track beyond a drawn-in outfield.

The Blue Jays have lost five of six.

"You've got to take it as it comes and analyze it and you've just got to suck it up and move on to tomorrow," said Langely B.C.'s Brett Lawrie. "There's no sense in dwelling on it. You've got to come back tomorrow and keep playing."

Lawrie's sixth homer staked Toronto to a 3-0 lead in the second. After one-out walks to Edwin Encarnacion and Kelly Johnson, the native of Langley ripped a 1-2 curveball from Jeremy Guthrie into the left-field stands.

Nadal perseveres in Round 1

Rafael Nadal's first match as defending U.S. Open champion was hardly a tour de force.

He would fall behind in a set, then come back. Fall behind, then come back.

His shots didn't have their normal depth. He needed to save seven set points during the second set.

The second-seeded Nadal eventually got past 98th-ranked Andrey Golubev 6-3, 7-6 (1), 7-5 in New York City last night to reach the second round of the U.S. Open.

6 Rafael Nadal's serve was broken six times yesterday; that happened to him only five times in seven matches during the 2010 U.S. Open

"Well," Nadal said. "I was a little bit lucky to win today in straight sets."

Nadal expended a lot more energy than No. 1 ranked Novak Djokovic.

The Serbian built a 6-0, 5-1 lead before qualifier Conor Niland of Ireland stopped after 44 minutes. Niland had food poisoning.

Earlier, top-seeded Caroline Wozniacki — who's searching for her first Grand Slam trophy — defeated 125th-ranked Nuria Llagostera Vives of Spain 6-3, 6-1.

Vancouver's Rebecca Marino and Frank Dancevic of Niagara Falls, Ont., both lost their first-round matches.

Engine

Getting the Beetle up to speed is handled by three distinct powerplants.

Base models come with a 170-horsepower 2.5-litre five-cylinder engine that pretty much carries over from the New Beetle. Optional is VW's popular 140-horsepower 2.0-litre turbo-diesel (TDI) that offers a very real alternative to most gas-electric hybrids when overall fuel economy and initial purchase cost are factored in.

The top-rung and most performance-focused Beetle features a 200-horsepower 2.0-litre turbocharged four-cylinder that also returns slightly better fuel economy than the base five-cylinder.

'Adult contemporary'

The 2012 Beetle features more people-friendly dimensions.

The distance between the front and rear wheels has been increased to create some much-needed rear-seat legroom as well as a more generous stowage area with either the 50:50 split rear seat occupied or folded flat.

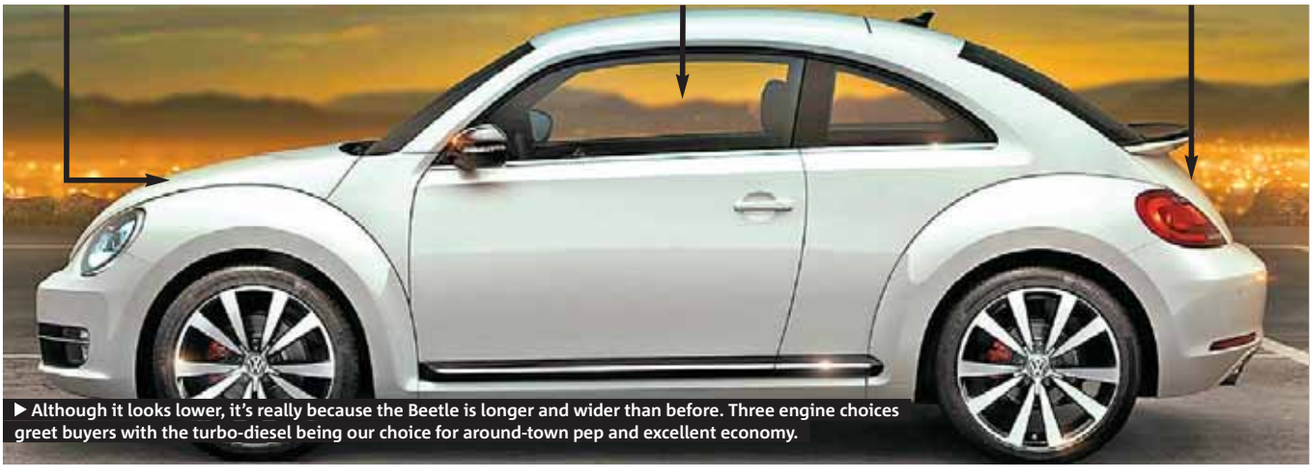
On the inside, the term "adult contemporary" comes to mind.

A sense of purpose and sportiness prevails with easy-to-read dials and massive air vents at either end of the dashboard.

Different look

Gone is the New Beetle's oval, almost cartoonish appearance, replaced by a longer hood and flatter roofline that ends in a rounded hatchway flanked by a set of prominent taillights.

Overall it's a look that Dr. Ferdinand Porsche, who sculpted the original Beetle nearly three-quarters of a century ago, would likely approve of.



▶ Although it looks lower, it's really because the Beetle is longer and wider than before. Three engine choices greet buyers with the turbo-diesel being our choice for around-town pep and excellent economy.

Catch the VW Bug all over again

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

The new 2012 Beetle represents another step back to the future for an iconic brand that is simply too good to let slip away.

The world held its collective baited breath when Volkswagen launched the New Beetle back in the late 1990s, before surging forward to scoop up as many of the reconstituted Bugs as the German automaker could produce.

Not many years later, the New Beetle had become not so new and its popularity waned.

Although the convertible version maintained a respectable degree of popularity, the hatchback model seemed to drift unchecked year after model year.

Following a one-year absence, the Beetle is back this fall with sharper styling, a roomier and up-to-date interior and more available power. Yes, and the name has been shortened to just plain Beetle, if you please.

That the car is returning at all is a gutsy move. After all, nobody begrudged Chrysler for cashiering the PT Cruiser econo-hot rod following its lengthy run and well after its "best-before" date had come and gone. But VW management obviously thought the Beetle brand was worth continuing.

What has emerged is a well-balanced and sportier shape that also projects the necessary degree of charm that pays homage to that original look.

CANADIAN TANGUAY IMPRESSES AT TOYOTA

AUTO PILOT

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE
@METRONEWS.CA

Sergio Marchionne is the high-flying and much-quoted president of Fiat and Chrysler. But he isn't the only Canadian making an impact on the global automotive stage.

After a promotion earlier this year, Ray Tanguay became the highest-ranking non-Japanese executive at Toyota Motor Corporation.

During Toyota's recall difficulties, he was asked by Toyota's numero uno executive, president Akio Toyoda, to help draft a Global Vision Business Plan, which would ultimately guide the Toyota mothership back on course.

Tanguay believed he received the invite to craft a plan because he made "the biggest noise" about Toyota losing its way. The gist of his vision was that Toyota's immense workforce, scattered all over the globe, needed a greater sense of mission and empowerment. To that end, he suggested more local decision-making and direct access to the top decision-makers in Japan.

Toyoda liked Tanguay's plan so much he immediately added the title of senior managing officer of Toyota Motor Corporation to Tanguay's already considerable portfolio. There are only three such positions worldwide, and they are just one rung below that of the board of directors.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ Toyota's all-electric RAV EV will be built in Canada.

Currently his two other titles are: Senior Vice President, Toyota Motor North America; and Chairman, Toyota Motor Manufacturing Canada.

The plan is far from his only accomplishment. He continues to champion more production and research facilities on this continent. He oversaw the growth of Toyota's Canadian production in Cambridge, Ont., and its evolution into a perennial winner of international quality awards. This made it easy for Toyota to send Lexus RX 350 production there in 2003 — still the only Lexus plant outside of Japan. And when Toyota was looking to open a North American plant to build its RAV4, Tanguay came up with a novel proposal — build the RAV4 plant in nearby Woodstock, as a satellite facility of the Cambridge plant.

Another recent accomplishment: The "house that Ray built" in Woodstock just received confirmation this month, that it will be the first North American Toyota facility to build an electric vehicle. In fact, the RAV EV will be built on the same line as the gasoline-powered RAV4.

Tanguay has French Canadian roots. Silver-haired, tall, and dignified, he reminds one of another charismatic French Canadian leader — Jean Beliveau, the legendary and graceful captain of the Montreal Canadians.

I don't know if Tanguay ever played hockey. But seeing that he was born and raised in Mattice, a remote town in northern Ontario, I'm betting he did. And I'm betting that underneath the controlled persona is someone just like Beliveau, someone with a lot of drive, passion, and competitive fight.

RL as reliable as luxury sedans can get

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Research the used luxury sedan market, and you'll likely find the Japanese knack for effective engineering and reliable electronics has translated into some of the more reliable luxury sedans on the road today.

The last-generation Acura RL is one such sedan.

With a plethora of features culminating in the most comprehensively-equipped sedan Honda's ever built, RL shoppers can look for navigation, Bluetooth, voice command, an advanced audio system, automatic climate control, steerable xenon lights and an intelligent key system, as well as plenty more.

2005 to 2008 Acura RL

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Engine

All RL models got a 3.5-litre, 290 horsepower V6 engine, 5-speed automatic transmission and Super Handling All Wheel Drive (SH-AWD). There's no V8 engine available.

What owners like

Drivers of this generation RL report enjoying a comfortable and quiet ride, agile handling, "under-the-radar" styling and great long-haul comfort during road trips. Masterful build quality and materials impressed many owners, as did Acura's promise of reliable performance.

What owners dislike

Common complaints include small, fussy and complicated controls for the navigation and audio system, and a relatively small trunk. Some owners report squeaks and rattles as the car ages.

Common issues

Low sales volumes mean Acura RL reliability information is tough to come by, but a few mandatory checks should help shoppers find a healthy unit. Approaching the RL, be sure the intelligent key-fob allows you to lock and unlock the doors with a touch on the handle. Look inside the wheelwells for signs of rust, as well as underneath the doors and around the trunk lid. Check for fluid leaks around the engine, transmission and transaxle.

Verdict

Concerns and trouble areas seem limited mainly to minor interior problems, and the RL ultimately appears to be a solid bet with a solid drivetrain.

Budget for a full fluid change and tune up to be safe.
